Note: Pour la position heisoku-dachi, il faut bien coller les pieds. Aux mouvements 1 à 7, il est important de coller les coudes pour les doubles blocages (contraction, extension). Pour le nukite, on plie le majeur de la main droite pour une plus grande puissance du corps. Pendant l'exécution de la technique de jambe fumikomi, on pointe le genou vers la cible.				Note: For the heisoku-dachi stance, feet must be tight together. For movements 1 to 7, it is important to have the elbows close to the body during the double blocking (contraction, extension). For the nukite, the right hand middle finger must be bent to increase power. During the leg technique fumikomi, the knee must be bent toward the target.
